St. Joseph Hospital Clinics

La Amistad de Jose Family Health Center is a fixed-site health clinic that began operations in 1986. The Center logs approximately 14,000 visits annually, serving economically disadvantaged individuals who do not have healthcare insurance coverage. La Amistad provides low-cost medical and dental services for persons of all ages, along with medications, diagnostic tests and health education to those who would not otherwise have access to these services. The clinic serves a large population of working class men and women who have household annual incomes of $19,596 or less. The Center's services are available Monday through Friday and one Saturday per month, and is located at 353 South Main Street in Orange.

Puente a La Salud Mobile Community Clinics are state-licensed mobile clinics. Implemented in 1996, the mobile clinics meet the need to provide healthcare services to the large population of seasonal and migrant agricultural workers and their families. Through the use of three mobile units, Puente a La Salud provides services, such as basic primary medical and dental care services, including health promotion and prevention, diagnosis and treatment, health education, which includes classes in CPR, pesticide safety, body mechanics, first aid and child safety, among others. All of the clinic's services are available Friday through Monday at selected community centers, schools and labor sites around Orange County. The clinic logs approximately 3,000 medical and 3,000 education encounters annually in addition to 2,000 dental visits.
